

Attendees

Board of Regents

Thelma V. Cook, Chairwoman
Reginald D. Dickson, Vice Chairman
Christine Chadwick, Member
Debra Hollingsworth, Member

Absent

Atty. Wayman F. Smith III, Member

President's Office

Dr. Albert L. Walker, President
Lea Sutherlin, Executive
Secretary to the President and Secretary to the
Board of Regents

President's Cabinet

Constance Gully, Executive
Vice President for Business and Financial Affairs
Dr. Dwyane Smith, Vice President for Academic Affairs
Courtney McCall, Asst. Vice President, Communications,
Marketing, Alumni Affairs and Development
James Fogt, Executive Director,
Information Technology
Heather Bostic, Executive Director, Title III and
Sponsored Programs
Charles Gooden, Dean,
Student Affairs

Others in Attendance

Dr. Michelle McClure,
Asst. Vice President for
Academic Affairs
Dr. Latisha Smith, Dean,
College of Education
Dr. Fara Zakery, Dean,
Anheuser-Busch School of Business
Lashanda Boone,
Executive Director,
Enrollment Management
Howard Richards, Executive Director, Institutional Security and Development

BOARD

HIGHLIGHTS

VOLUME 8, ISSUE 3

MAY 2013

Chairwoman's Report

Approval of the March 2013 Minutes

A motion was made by Regent Dickson seconded by Regent Chadwick and unanimously carried for approval of the March 2013 Board minutes.

Regent Dickson remarked that Fresh Ideas, HSSU's catering company, continues to provide outstanding service during Board meetings.

President's Report

Harris-Stowe State University to Host the National Small Business Administration Conference with Mr. Jack Dorsey, Founder of Twitter and David Steward, Founder of World Wide Technology on June 19

President Walker announced that Harris-Stowe State University will serve as the host for the National Small Business Administration Conference on June 19. He stated that Jack Dorsey, founder of Twitter and David Steward, founder of World Wide Technology will be the featured keynote speakers during the conference, and that he (Dr. Walker) has been asked to serve on one of the panels. He invited board members to attend.

Report from Senator John Scott, HSSU Legislative Consultant

President Walker stated that he invited former state senator John Scott, who serves as Harris-Stowe's legislative consultant, to make a brief presentation to the Board.

Senator Scott shared information about chartering the course in the legislative process. He reported that the process is more challenging now because more time is being spent on issues like guns instead of education. He then spoke about additional challenges with funding and specifically, performance-based funding legislation. He spoke about how term limits also make it difficult to deal with the legislative process so one must work with caucuses and leadership.

He further shared that bond issues also presented challenges this year, and about many of the challenges facing other institutions across the state. Senator Scott noted that funding levels are still at those from the 1990s, but that things are always changing so it is important to keep abreast of what is going on.

President Walker thanked Senator Scott for keeping the University informed about key issues at the state level.

Business and Financial Affairs

March/April 2013 Financial Reports

Mrs. Gully reported that she met with the Board Finance Committee on May 22, 2013. She added that prior to that meeting, a meeting was held with external auditors. She thanked Chairwoman Cook and Regent Dickson for their participation and leadership.

She then reported that the general operating fund revenues for period ending March 2013 were at 79%, and expenditures at 73%; and for April, general operating fund revenues were at 89% and expenditures at 80%; Gillespie Residence Hall housing rental revenues were at 96% with expenditures at 62% for the month of April; Bosley Hall housing rental revenues were at 92% with expenditures at 52% for the month of April; Clay Center revenues were at 90% with expenditures at 71% for the month of April; and, Consortium for Leadership Development (CLD) revenues were at $77,600 (revenues for current year pay for operating expenses of the program) and expenditures at 78% for the month of April.

Mrs. Gully also gave a brief update on the budget. She stated that HSSU will receive a slight increase from the state, but that with the decrease in overall enrollment, the University must continue to reduce expenditures and cut additional costs.

Chairwoman Cook asked Mrs. Gully what she felt attributed to the shortfall.

Business and Financial Affairs Cont.

Mrs. Gully stated that she felt the shortfall was from credit-hour production. She further stated that from the numbers side, new students are coming in but somehow juniors and seniors are leaving; but that shortfalls are also related to Parent Plus loans and students not being able to afford living on campus.

Regent Dickson stated that it sounds like more of an attrition problem than an enrollment problem.

Regent Cook reminded the staff that the Board had asked that a survey be done about why students are leaving.

Mr. Fogt stated that the survey has been done and that he will get that information to the Board.

Chairwoman Cook then asked about Title III.

Mrs. Bostic stated that Title III has not yet received a budget but that a 5-6% cut is anticipated which would be roughly $100,000.

Academic Affairs

Report on Degree Production and Retention

Prior to his presentation, Dr. Smith introduced Harris-Stowe student scholar, Jordan Fowlkes.

Mr. Fowlkes shared that he is a senior Accounting major, and that he and another student, have been selected for internships at Boeing. He added that he has also had the opportunity to intern for the Regional Business Council, the Thurgood Marshall College Fund and the Department of Veterans Affairs.

Ms. McCall noted that out of 400 students who applied nationwide for the internships at Boeing, HSSU submitted applications for six positions and two were selected. She added that Mr. Fowlkes and the other student selected are both Accounting majors.

Dr. Smith then gave a PowerPoint presentation on degree production at Harris-Stowe. He stated that according to recent research, it is estimated that the United States needs to produce roughly one million more graduates a year by 2020 which is about 40 percent more than today, to ensure the country has the skilled workers it needs. He added that reaching this goal would mean increasing today's annual output of bachelor's degree holders by approximately 3.5 percent per year for the next decade. Dr. Smith reported that Harris-Stowe's degree production the last few years has exceeded this percentage and that the 2012-2013 graduation class of 162 was the largest in 35 years. He then presented the cohort data and stated that a majority of graduates are not counted in cohort data. He added that while degree production has increased, six-year cohort graduation rates have either remained static or decreased. Dr. Smith then reported that the Department of Education announced in 2012 that part-time and transfer students would soon be included in graduation-rate tallies, and that this would mean that HSSU and other institutions will have a more equitable measurement in degree production as many students who were rendered "invisible" will finally be counted. He also presented HSSU's degree-production rankings statewide for public four-year institutions, along with Harris-Stowe's performance funding status. Dr. Smith concluded his presentation with a focus on Harris-Stowe's statewide rankings in graduating African-American males and females, which showed that HSSU ranks fourth out of 13 Missouri public institutions to graduate African-American females and ninth in graduating African-American males. He stated that data collection is an important piece of the Department of Education's new degree completion formula, and that the ongoing issue nationally, statewide and at HSSU is the academic achievement of African-American males. He noted that Harris-Stowe plays a critical role in the graduation of African-Americans and other underrepresented groups in higher education.

Regent Chadwick commented that this is high on the business community agenda, and that she attended a recent conference where Dr. McClure represented HSSU. She stated that it is important that Harris-Stowe continue to share our demographics and be visible.

Regent Chadwick commented on immigration and that this college attainment is very ripe and again, very important to the business community. She noted that there are some real opportunities in that area.

Regent Dickson commented that it is good to hear that businesses are prioritizing, but in his opinion this is not surprising data, and that HSSU must commit to a plan where the leadership is here, and success originates here. He added that we have a jewel in HSSU and we must capitalize on the fact that this is a great opportunity for all students.

Dr. Smith gave kudos to Meaghan Effan, coordinator of institutional research at HSSU, and the Missouri Department of Higher Education Research Department for their assistance with providing data.

A copy of Dr. Smith's complete PowerPoint presentation can be found with the May 2013 Board Booklet.

Chairwoman Cook reminded everyone, on a separate note, that protocol is important, and that the president should always be introduced and/or bring welcome remarks at programs and the Board of Regents should always be listed on printed programs. She added that it is also important to have good customer service in place and that the public should be notified of HSSU Campus closures, etc.

Chairwoman Cook thanked Mrs. Gully for the explanation and added that the phone lines should be checked regularly as an outsider should not be the one to find out that there is a problem.

Student Affairs

Prior to his report, Mr. Gooden reminded everyone that the Division of Student Affairs is comprised of athletics, career services, counseling services, health services, residential life, student activities and community outreach. He stated that the division provided supportive, meaningful and exciting events and activities for the students throughout the academic year which supplemented the learning experiences received in the classroom. He remarked that each department created experiences which would improve the personal and social life structure for students, thus developing a greater loyalty, caring and love for the University. He further remarked that the additional bi-weekly group sessions provided great opportunities to strengthen assistance to students with weak learning areas along with a better understanding of self and others.

He then thanked Ms. Boone for including Student Activities in collaboration for fall enrollment. He stated that this first phase of orientation included session for parents.

Mr. Gooden reported that Career Services increased communication with students, staff and alumni through information and opportunities for internships, employment, assistance with improving interview skills, résumé writing and research for employment and advance study. He stated that several students have been accepted for internships including Mr. Chris Miller and Mr. James Guest who were selected to serve a summer internship at the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, GA; and Ms. Helena Perine and Mr. Erik Shelquist, through the Thurgood Marshall College Fund, were selected to attend summer sessions at The United Nations in New York City with a side trip to Washington, D.C. (arrangements have been made with U.S. Representative William “Lacy” Clay of Missouri, to introduce the two HSSU students on the floor during the House of Representative session.)

Mr. Gooden reported that Counseling Services provided the opportunity for several students from HSSU to present at the Missouri SWAT Peer Educators Conference “Meeting of the Minds” in Kansas City, MO. He stated that seven students attended and gave presentations to the conference attendees which were well received. He then reported that HSSU counselor Dr. Vickie Bernard attended a two-day “ALICE Training” (alert, lockdown, inform counter, evacuate), to assist in the campus public safety process.

He then reported that Student Activities selected nine students from various organizations to attend the National Association of Student Affairs Professional Student Leadership Institute 2013, at Savannah State University in Savannah, GA. He stated that HSSU collaborated with Lincoln University and their student team and will share costs and travel with HSSU students to the conference. He added that the students attending will return and share experiences learned with members of the student population. Mr. Gooden further reported that Student Activities also conducted the election of student government officers and Majestic Assembly members for the 2013-2014 academic year and that these officers will be sworn in this fall.

2013 Commencement Convocation Saturday, May 11, 2013

HSSU's Inaugural Spring Fundraiser & Silent Auction Saturday, May 4, 2013

